"We hope you'll join us for a truly magnificent and unique event within Louisville's cultural landscape! This one-of-a-kind performance features the most intimate and endearing of all Gustav Mahler's symphonic masterpieces, performed by a 15-piece chamber ensemble at the stunning Library at Oxmoor Farm. The evening will follow a tradition established 100 years ago in Vienna by the Society for Private Musical Performances, which often presented orchestral works by giants such as Mahler, Strauss, and Berg, arranged for chamber ensembles comprising some of the greatest musicians living in the city at that time. Your support helps ensure the success and viability of this bold, unprecedented undertaking. We can't do it without you so please join us in this exciting endeavor to help make Louisville the home and champion for the arts that it is!"

-Gabriel Lefkowitz, Louisville Orchestra Concertmaster
